FOREWORD

REBOUND AND RECOVERY

ur Finance Minister presented her 3rd Covid Budget. The first came when the slope looked slippery, the next on a slippery slope and, hopefully, this is one when we are slipping out of the covid's hold. To set things right, she has to tackle the fiscal deficit and growing inflation, a situation facing many countries. Employment generation at one end whereas the businessperson mood needing upliftment at the other. Incentives in last 2 years have helped. Productivity Linked Incentive schemes (PLIs) got the desired attention of both domestic and international players. Actually, to her benefit, the global mood for India is up once again, some of it on account of geopolitical reasons. Important FTAs are under discussion. FDI is moving up. In this environment, the focus should be less on dramatic policy shift. It should be on infrastructure and similar spends to give impetus to growth, besides clear steps to attract foreign investors, especially in the manufacturing sector.

In this budget, I think our FM was spot on. Encouraged by healthy tax collections and attainable future possibilities, she tinkered little with direct tax rates and policies, and rather focused on allocations. A chunk of these went to infrastructure, including 400 Vande Bharat trains and 100 cargo terminals in 3 years, masterplan for expressways, 75 digital banking units, 5G roll out, joining of 5 rivers, etc. With an outlook of building India as a financial services base, she is allowing universities specializing in this area, International Arbitration Centers etc in GIFT city. In similar fervor, she announced a Crypto currency to be issued by the RBI in this year, alongside announcing a capital gain tax @ 30 per cent on trading of any virtual digital asset. Expectedly, the entire speech was generously sprinkled with the word digital, indicating a highly technology focused outlook of the government.

She indicated that the next phase of ease of doing business would be launched together with suitable amendments to simplify tax systems. In order to woo foreign investors as equally domestic players, changes are proposed in the insolvency law to facilitate cross border disputes resolution, bring in a new SEZ legislation within this year, create a trackable e-Bill system to ensure timely payment on government contracts, etc. With an eye on the future, Artificial Intelligence, Geospatial Systems and Drones, Semiconductor and its eco-system, Space Economy, Genomics and Pharmaceuticals, Green Energy, and Clean Mobility Systems are classified as sunrise industries and are to be given deeper attention. Similarly, a task force is to be set up to build a local base with a global outlook for the Animation, Visual Effects, Gaming and Comic (AVGC) sector. Sustainable growth and reduction of carbon footprints found mention with specific ideas like energy saving in buildings, blended fuel to be made compulsory, etc. May be there is merit in her calling it a budget for India @100.

She extended tax incentives for Startups and manufacturing units by a year given the period lost due to covid. Rest was about rationalizing customs duty with Make in India the center of focus. Accordingly, capital goods and project imports duties will be rationalized and exemptions removed in a phased manner on 350 items. The plan being that whatever is or can be manufactured in India will suffer higher duty. Whereas, those items which create domestic value addition or are yet not possible to make in India have enjoyed reduction. While on the Make in India push, 68 per cent of Defence spending and 25 per cent of Defence R&D budget is earmarked for domestic players. Given the sizeable chunk annually allocated here, this is an opportunity sector. Furthermore, there was no mention of strategic divestments. Post the successful sale of Air India, that was a surprise.

It appears she has a realistic target of fiscal deficit @ 6.4 per cent by this year end, but a somewhat ambitious outlook to bring it down to 4.5 per cent by FY 2025–26. But she has placed her bets in an interesting and promising year given the domestic and global mood for Indian economy. She could well get there. All we need now is for Covid to behave and cooperate.
